Housing

In spite of the surprising fact that there is no waiting list for entry into two of the county's subsidized housing complexes, the provincial housing ministry has given the green light for plans to be drawn up for 40 new units in Haliburton village. Please see page 8.

Kinark

A shortage of provincial funding for mental health services is taking its toll on the ability of Kinark to respond to the needs of the community. Please see page 6.

Farewell

Over the past year the Ellis family has made many friends in the Minden area, but now that they are preparing to return to Australia. Last week, friends gathered to bid them a fond farewell. Please see page 22.

North Pole team in derby

Just a few weeks after Santa Claus makes his Christmas-eve appearance in Minden, one of his neighbours will be making the trip to town.

Instead of harnessing up a team of reindeer, though, these welcome visitors will be outfitting a team of sled dogs.

Bob Stevens, from North Pole, Alaska, will be competing in the Minden Sled Dog Derby on January 13 and 14. The committee received his application form last week.

We're not sure if this team is sponsored by Santa, but if the dogs are on the same diet as Santa's reindeer you can bet they will really fly.

When two mid-sized vehicles meet on parts of Deep Bay Road, one will have to back up. Lutterworth Township Deputy Reeve Jim McMahon demonstrates just how narrow the road is in some area. With the plow on the front of his truck, he leaves less than four feet of room for another vehicle to pass without going into the ditch.

As warm as a day in July

B'Nai Brith members break bread in Minden

The temperature outside may have been chilly, but the atmosphere in the basement of the Minden United Church was warm, warm as a day in July.

The occasion was a visit to the community of the members of B'Nai Brith of Toronto and its League for Human Rights. They travelled to Minden to share a luncheon with members of the United Church congregation and others from the community in a relaxed friendly setting.

Many of those who arrived Sunday had been here before. They had been part of a group which arrived in the community July 2 to take part in anti-discrimination rally organized to counter a gathering of neo-Nazis north of Minden. At that time the members of B'Nai Brith marched quietly through the streets to the front steps of the United Church. There they expressed their appreciation to Reverend Ed Moll, the members of his congregation and the citizens of the community for their positive response to the racist rally taking place in the community's midst.

Invitations were exchanged for both groups to get to know each other better, under less Deep Bay, or Danger Bay?

Haliburton County's roads committee will be taking another look at its plans for upgrading a short stretch of Deep Bay Road after hearing complaints from area residents at a meeting Dec. 3.

Since it was assumed by the County in 1972, Deep Bay Road has seen many improvements. However, the narrow, winding stretch that goes around Deep Bay on Gull Lake is considered by many to pose considerable risk to motorists.

About 50 people turned out to the meeting to voice their concerns about the road's condition and the county's plan to improve it.

Referring to this section of the road as "Danger Bay", Lutterworth Township Deputy Reeve Jim McMahon says something has to be done to improve the road before someone is killed. He also criticizes the roads committee's plan to upgrade the present road, rather than to reroute it behind the cottages.

According to County Engineer Bill Obee, almost $150,000 was spent on improvements to this section of the road this summer. The work had to be halted when they ran short of money for this project, he said at the last County Council meeting.

Although Obee maintains that the actual road surface was not altered by the work this summer, McMahon and others feel it is more dangerous to drive than ever.

Obee says road workers cleared out the ditches along the side of the road, but the work did not result in a narrower paved surface.

McMahon agrees that the surface may not have been narrowed, but says that by digging out the ditches, the result is the same. In some areas of this strip, it is difficult or impossible for two mid-size vehicles to pass. McMahon wonders what would happen if a school bus was to meet up with a snowplow on one of the many hills.

Barb Todd, who drives a school bus each weekday along Deep Bay Road, agrees that the road appears more dangerous than in the past. She said she is not sure of exactly what has changed, but she finds it worse to drive than before the construction began last summer.

Todd said she worries whenever she drives around the first corner in the construction zone. "None of it's anything to rave about," she says, but that first corner is the worst part. She said she has spoken with Obee and Jim Bradley, the Business Administrator for the board of education about the situation. She was told by Bradley that if she feels the weather conditions make it unsafe to drive, she should not go in. This winter she has already refused to travel that part of her route once.

Todd doesn't blame the roads department for the condition of the road. She says she believes they are doing the best they can with what money they have to spend. However, she says it should be made safer for all motorists.

McMahon notes that there was an accident two years ago in this area when a school bus was unable to negotiate one of the hills. When the bus backed down the hill, it slipped off the side of the road. Only a stand of trees saved it from falling further into a cottage or into Gull Lake.

After the accident, the damaged trees were removed, said McMahon. Therefore, if a similar accident was to happen on that hill, there would be nothing to stop the bus.

McMahon, who lives just beyond the south end of the construction zone, says the condition of the rest of the road magnifies the problems along this strip. Because the rest of Deep Bay Road is in relatively good condition, motorists tend to travel at a high rate of speed. If they are not aware of what lies ahead, McMahon says they could find themselves in trouble.

McMahon says either end of Deep Bay Road is like a highway, but the middle section is barely wide enough for two cars to pass. "It's like trying to pour a gallon of milk into a quart bottle. It doesn't work."

Virtually everyone agrees that the road needs improvement. However, the people who own homes and cottages along the strip disagree with the county's plans for upgrading.

The roads department had planned to upgrade the existing road, straightening out some sections and widening the whole strip. However, that would mean that one cottage a boathouse and possibly one garage would have to be removed.

McMahon said the people who live along this section of the road would be upset if it was to be improved to match the condition of the rest of the road. Most have to cross the road in order to get to the lake and don't want to deal with fast-moving traffic. McMahon said that some at the meeting suggested that if the county was going to take this route, they would like the county to buy all their cottages. He said they don't want to live next to a highway.

As an alternative, McMahon says the county should reroute the road behind the cottages and leave the existing road only to access the cottages.

Obee said this is an option the roads committee will be looking at. He said the committee considered this measure in the early 1970's but dropped the idea because of the costs. Obee said he doesn't know what it would cost to reroute the road today, but the committee will be looking into it.

If, as anticipated, this option is deemed too costly, the county is bound to face strong opposition to improvements to the existing route. The owner of the cottage that would have to be removed has been offered only $8,000 as compensation for his building.

The cottage, owned by Stan Kubels of Stratford was built on the shoreline road allowance about 45 years ago, said McMahon. And even though he doesn't own the land, McMahon says he has been paying taxes on it.

Although the county has no obligation to offer any reimbursement to Kubels, McMahon believes that if the cottage has to be removed he should be paid market value. He said the cottage was built before anyone paid much attention to shoreline road allowances.

Christmas spirit

We've never seen so many happy faces as those of the children throughout the Highlands this Christmas season thanks to the individuals and groups that have organized the many festive gatherings in recent weeks.

The first Minden Santa Claus Parade, spearheaded by the Minden Lions, cheerfully opened a Christmas season in the Highlands that is bound to be remembered for years. The joy of that highly-successful event was followed up this past weekend with numerous celebrations throughout the area.

In Stanhope, they had their annual Christmas party at the Firefighters' Hall. Kinmount held their colourful Santa Claus Parade. Santa visited Hyland Crest Saturday, along with a ventriloquist who delighted dozens of children. An in Gooderham, they had their combined Town and School Concert with a special visit from the man of the season.

The success of all these events is reflected in the cheery on children's faces. Thanks to everyone who contributed to making this one of the best Christmas seasons ever.

Election?

Over the next year, Haliburton County Council should be giving some consideration to its method of selecting a County Warden and ending the current practice of handing the title and responsibilities over to whoever's turn it may be.

Tomorrow night, County Warden Keith Tallman's term officially comes to a close and a new person will be chosen to take his place at the head of council. Tradition dictates that tomorrow's election will be uncontested. In all probability, there will be only one nomination, and this candidate will be elected to the county's highest political office with a unanimous show of hands.

This method of choosing a leader is efficient and has resulted in no notable backlash from county councillors or the public. However, it is hardly in keeping with the democratic intent of the guidelines spelled out in the county's procedural by-law.

Because of the obvious satisfaction with the present system of choosing a Warden, the need for change is not a pressing matter. However, with a provincial review of county government underway and an expressed desire for this county to take on new responsibilities, change must come in the years ahead.

Modern art and Freddie Kreuger

I see the Montreal Art world has worked itself up into a lather. The "to do" has to do with a huge gash in a painting that was on display in a special exhibition at Montreal's Museum of Contemporary Art.

The painting is an abstract by the artist Sigmar Polke. It now looks as if it's been love-tapped by Freddie Kreuger. A ragged five-inch-by-three-inch rip runs right across the centre of the canvas.

The owner of the painting was less upset about the damage than she was about the cavalier response of the curators. Wealthy collector Lonti Ebers has charged the museum with "unprofessionalism and blatant contempt". She claims they "deliberately withheld information" about the rip "until a shocking 17 days after the discovery of the damage".

Well, I hesitate to dip my Philistine toe into the boiling waters of an Art controversy, but I think I know what the problem is here.

I don't believe that the folks at the Museum of Contemporary Art are guilty of unprofessionalism or contempt. I doubt that they were trying to cover up the damage or mislead the owner.

My guess is, they didn't know whether or not the gash was supposed to be part of the painting.

It's no longer easy for serious and committed art lovers to understand the totality of an artistic statement. Used to be that painters could be relied on to slap down canvasses covered with cows or mountains or Naked Majas. An art connoisseur or a curator could hold it out at arm's length, squint and say "That's a damned fine cow!" or "Now, this Maja is much more Naked than his early Naked Majas."

Chaps like Renoir, Goya, Rembrandt and Velasquez routinely delivered paintings of sunsets and nymphets, battle scenes and dotty monarchs that even a child could recognize, if not entirely appreciate.

Then the Dadaists and Cubists rode into town. Pretty soon Georges Braque was turning out paintings that looked like they'd been painted on glass, then shattered with a brick. Picasso introduced

'Obey or face incarceration' overwhelming theme

Editor:

Has everything we learned and strived for in the sixties gone in vain? Today, it seems, our laws are mutating into a new theme...sterilize the country. If it's not suitable to our variegated society, then place outrageous restrictions on it. 'Public Opinion' (whoever that is) is regulating and channeling our moral standards down a funnel. Sound like communism, it's gettin there. We are losing the freedom of making an intelligent choice. That's determined for us and being strickly enforced; 'obey or face incarceration'.

Maybe I'm naive about kids and drugs today, but when I was in high school in Toronto in the sixties, a poll was taken (and revealed in the Toronto Star) where over 80 percent of our school had experimented with cannabis and over 65 percent used it on a regular basis. Was this a drug problem? We didn't think so. Our parents wondered, but weren't really sure what it was all

Santa parade appreciated

Editor:

May I take this opportunity to say CONGRATULATIONS to the Lions Club of Minden, and to all those who participated in organizing and making the Santa Claus Parade a great success. Also for their generosity to the children at the fire hall. They were very kind.

With thanks to the LIONS CLUB, Reeve Ray Moore, etc., Minden might come out of the bush after all.

Fortunately, it was not pushed down the drain, as was The Ride for Sight.

May this annual event continue.

Getting a belly full of modern art

us to painted characters that appeared as cartoon mutants with extra breasts and both eyes on the same side of their faces, like Dover soles.

And that was merely the beginning.

Nowadays painters turn out works with murky titles like "Study #398" or "Symbiosis/Dodge Galaxy."

It's difficult to sound intelligent when you're gazing at a canvas that looks like it fell off the truck face down in a muddy parking lot.

And more than a few people have been fooled. Back in 1961, the Museum of Modern Art in New York reverentially unveiled a painting called Le Bateau by famous French expressionist Henri Matisse. It hung in the gallery for 46 days, drawing adoring crowds and ecstatic reviews until someone murmured "Err, isn't that ... upside down?"

It was.

I imagine the museum staff was almost as embarrassed as Edward Brzezinski was last month. Brzezinski, a New York artist himself, had wandered into a Soho gallery featuring an exhibition of work by sculptor Robert Gober.

"Trite stuff" Brzezinski said to himself as he ambled through the exhibits. "Working class kitsch. Predictable. Derivative. At least they laid out some hors d'oeuvres."

And Brzezinski reached out to an open bag of doughnuts, snagged one and scarfed it down.

Which is when the gallery owner descended upon him, shrieking and swearing. Brzezinski, hiccupped the owner, had just desecrated an original Robert Gober sculpture, price-tagged at $8,000.

It's difficult to say which bothered Edward Brzezinski more -- the knowledge that as an art connoisseur, he'd blown it, or the fact that he was carrying a doughnut treated with an industrial plastic preservative in his belly.

Whatever, eyewitnesses report that Brzezinski definitely had a glazed look about him.

Kinark faces cuts as demand grows

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Faced with a growing demand for services and no increase in government funding, the Kinark Child and Family Services Centre is looking for ways to streamline its operation.

Director Andre Breton says Kinark, the only Children's Mental Health Centre in Haliburton County, is experiencing its busiest year ever but will only receive an increase of funding equal to the rate of inflation.

The centre has a waiting list of 17 families who need assistance, and some will have to wait as long three months for service.

"The system is not as helpful as it could be," says Breton.

The financial crisis being experienced by the Haliburton office is common to children's mental health centres all across the province. In a newsletter published by the Ontario Association of Children's Mental Health Centres, the issue of children's mental health is called the "neglected orphan of Ontario's health and social services systems."

Breton says the "quick fix" solution for his centre's difficulties would be to hire three more staff members to address the backlog of people wanting assistance.

"That would take care of today, but I don't know if it would take care of the demand a year from now," says Breton. But given the fact that over the last several years Kinark's funding has only been increased by about four per cent annually, Breton says hiring additional staff is financially impossible.

In an effort to keep their heads above water, the local centres are trying to streamline their services to meet the growing demand given their limited financial resources.

To that end, Breton has circulated a survey to 240 people in the county in an effort to determine what children's mental health issues Kinark should focus on.

The survey has been sent to people who are involved with children and would have some idea of their needs. The list of questionnaire recipients includes teachers, doctors, other social service agencies, and clients of the Kinark centre.

The survey asks people to rate the importance of some of the problems that Kinark deals with and also to rate the importance of some of the services the centre offers.

Mental health services have been 'downgraded, chronically underfunded and misunderstood by a predominantly welfare-oriented ministry.' As a result, Kinark may have to change its way of doing business.

Breton says he hopes the survey will give him an indication of where the community feels he should be directing his efforts and what methods should be used to address these problems.

"It may mean we won't be doing business as we are doing now," says Breton. "We may have to restructure our services and how we provide them." He says the four per cent increase in funding fails to recognize the changing times and doesn't allow for any growth in services.

Reported incidents of sexual abuse and family violence involving children have increased over the last five years as more and more children are coming forward and disclosing these incidents.

The centre is being asked to deal with more situations and more difficult situations without the necessary financial backing from the province, says Breton.

In the past year the Ministry of Community and Social Services, the ministry responsible for administering funds to Kinark, did inject some new money into the system. In Haliburton County the new money amounted to a one-time grant of $100,000.

The money was used to establish a Parent Support Program in the county and Breton says was it was a wise investment of the funds which meets the needs of the Kinark's clients. But the benefit is limited compared to the centre's total operation.

"The additional $100,000 means something, but it's only addressing a small fraction of the issue," says Breton.

Children's Mental Health Centres, like Kinark, are designed to help families with children, up to the age of 19 years, who are experiencing difficulties.

What distinguishes these centres from other social agencies is their multi-disciplinary approach. The people employed by the centre come from a variety of professions including social work, child care, education and psychology.

By looking at a child from the view point of a variety of professions the centre is able to come up with a plan for what kind of assistance is needed. "No single discipline has a monopoly on dealing with children's mental health," says Breton.

The services offered by Kinark include individual and family assessment, counselling, social skills training, child management and consultation.

In conjunction with the Haliburton County Board of Education, the centre operates a classroom for students who are unable to cope in a normal class environment. The aim of the class program is to gradually reintegrate students back into the school system.

Every year Kinark submits to the Ministry of Community and Social Services a plan which describes the kinds of services the centre plans to offer and the price tag for the services. Flexibility in the service plan is limited to the four per cent increase in funding.

The centre can argue that an increase of more than four per cent is necessary, "but it usually doesn't get you very far," says Breton.

The beginning of the crisis for children's mental health has been traced to 1977 when responsibility for the service was transferred to the Ministry of Commercial and Social Services from the Ministry of Health.

According to the Association of Children's Mental Health Centres, the result of that transfer was that mental health services for children have been "downgraded, chronically underfunded and misunderstood by a predominantly welfare-oriented ministry."

The rationale behind the move was to have all children's services provided by one ministry so services could be coordinated. "Most people acknowledge that the original intent behind the move was good," says Breton. "But the co-ordination of services hasn't happened and the children's mental health services have been eroded."

The reason of this erosion, in part, is because the focus of the Ministry of Health is treatment, while the focus of the Ministry of Community and Social Services is welfare.

This difference in attitude has forced some centres to participate in a fraud, according to the association. In order to qualify for federal funding under the Canada Assistance Plan, there must be any treatment taking place at the children's mental health centres. So despite the fact they are treating the children they have to adopt the posture of being an 'intervention' agency.

The association is also lobbying for changes in the legislation governing the delivery of children's mental health services.

Families frustrated by long wait for help

Currently children do not have a right to mental health care services in Ontario. They are guaranteed health care if they are suffering from injury or accident but not guaranteed treatment if they are victims of sexual abuse, violence, emotional disturbance or mental illness.

Last year children's mental health services had over 10,000 children on their waiting lists.

Breton says some families on Kinark's waiting list manage to work their problems out themselves before they can be helped by the centre. But others get frustrated with the wait. After waiting for help some families adopt the attitude of "thanks anyways, but we needed help three months ago, where were you then?"

He says he can't blame people for giving up on a system that takes so long to react to their needs.

And the situation in Haliburton County is not bad compared to other parts of the province where the wait can be anywhere up to a year. Some centres don't even bother keeping formal waiting lists anymore because they don't want to give people the false hope that service will be available soon.

In a crisis situation, Breton says the centre tried to respond with assistance right away, but when the case is less severe the family is put on the waiting list. "It's a judgement call," he says.

It's not uncommon for a problem to get much worse while a family is waiting for assistance. Sometimes, if a child is in an abusive situation, the situation escalates to the point where it becomes a child protection issue, says Breton.

"Someday it's quite possible that someone on a waiting list could commit suicide," says Breton. In eastern Ontario there was one centre that had a number of suicidal teenagers on its waiting list and couldn't get to them to offer assistance. None committed suicide, but Breton says the potential was definitely there.

The waiting list also puts pressure on the centre's staff, says Breton, because when they've completed treatment on one child they know there will be another to take his place, "and one after that, and another after that."

About one third of the people on the waiting list will say they no longer need assistance once their turn for help comes. "That's great if they can resolve the situation themselves," says Breton, "but for two-thirds of the families that doesn't happen. The problem either stay the same or gets worse."

It's often more difficult to resolve problems that have escalated during the wait for assistance, and frustrating to know that situations might be dealt with more easily if they could be dealt with sooner, he says.

Kinark deals with a wide range of problems being experienced by families. "Sometimes people get the impression that in Haliburton County there aren't all those awful problems we read about in the Globe and Mail," says Breton. "But each and every one of those problems is present in Haliburton."

The centre's clients have included children who are suicidal, victims of sexual and physical abuse, suffer from depression or anxiety and students with behavior problems and learning difficulties.

Kinark is at a turning point in its ability to deliver services, says Breton. The funding situation is forcing the centre to focus on those services which address the most prevalent problems among Haliburton County's children while reducing those areas that have less demand.

"We can't be all things to all people," says Breton, "and it's important to admit it."

PAC denies severances near Minden landfill site

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden's Planning Advisory Committee has turned down an application for severances to property located across from the Scotch Line landfill site.

The severances were refused on the basis of a requirement by the Ministry of the Environment that residential development be kept at least a quarter mile away from a landfill site.

James Clement, the owner of the subject property attended the planning committee meeting with his lawyer Brian Adamson.

Adamson tried to convince the com-

No waiting list at local units a surprise

In spite of an evident shortage of interest in two subsidized housing buildings in the Highlands, the Provincial Housing Ministry has given the go-ahead to develop plans for 40 new non-profit senior citizen rental homes in Haliburton Village.

The lack of elevators and a high turn-over rate at the Sunrise Apartment in Minden has erased the waiting list for these rent-geared-to-income units, which are run by the Victoria Haliburton Housing Authority. A similar situation exists at the authority's units on Mountain Street in Haliburton.

The absence of a waiting list for these apartments made it very difficult to justify the need for more units in the county, said Victoria Haliburton MPP John Eakins.

Eakins, who was working to convince the Provincial Housing Ministry of the need for the 40 new units that are being sought by the Haliburton Community Housing Corporation, said he was surprised to learn there was no waiting list of people trying to get into the older units in Minden and Haliburton. "It certainly doesn't help my cause," Eakins said in a telephone interview last week.

In spite of this confounding information, Housing Minister John Sweeney granted approval Friday for the preliminary work for the 40 new units in Haliburton Village. Eakins said the Community Housing Corporation can now go ahead and develop plans for the project. He said that once this initial approval is granted, such projects are seldom turned down by the ministry.

Doug Manson, the manager of the Victoria Haliburton Housing Authority, said there are a couple of factors that combined to deplete the waiting list at the Sunrise Apartments in Minden. He said the authority has found it difficult to rent the apartments on the second floor of the building because many of the eligible tenants are unable or reluctant to climb stairs. This limits the number of people who can occupy the units, he said.

In addition, he said there was an unusually high turn-over rate at Sunrise Apartments this past summer, which contributed to the dwindling waiting list. Normally, he says there is a waiting list of about two or three people at Sunrise and another seven to 10 at the authority's units in Haliburton.

Ironically, while the interest in these units has dwindled, the waiting lists at Minden's Staunworth buildings and Haliburton's Parkside Apartments is significant. There are about 50 people waiting to get into Staunworth and more than 80 waiting to get into Parkside.

Manson said part of the problem at Sunrise may stem from a mistaken public opinion that there is a long wait to get in. It's possible that people are feeling there is no sense in applying because they won't get in, said Manson. In most communities across the province, there is a huge waiting list for subsidized housing, but that's not the case at housing authority's units in Minden and Haliburton.

Manson said he is considering launching a public awareness campaign to inform people of what is available and who is eligible to become a tenant. The rent-geared-to-income housing is designed to assist needy people to find suitable, affordable accommodation. Manson said the rent is based on a tenant's income. A tenant is required to pay only 25 per cent of the gross monthly income for housing. He said the average rent for units at Sunrise is from $220 to $250 per month. This, however, varies with each tenant.

The Sunrise building is about 15 years old and the units are "modest" in size, said Manson. Each has a small kitchen, living room, single bedroom and washroom. The living area is about 500 square feet, which he says is sufficient for most people as long as they don't try to move all their possessions from a house into their apartment.

Sunrise Apartments were originally built for seniors, but the authority is now allowed to accept younger people. However, when accepting younger tenants, Manson said they have to look at other factors. He said they have to blend in with the current make-up of the building. If they were to start accepting very young tenants, there could be problems, he said.

Although there are no elevators at the buildings, Manson says the expressed interest in these units should be higher. There was a high demand for the units when they were built 15 years ago and they didn't have elevators then. The fact that many people are willing to wait to get into the newer facilities is an indication that "they're not that hard pressed," he said.

Installing elevators in the building could make them more attractive to tenants, but that would cost more than $100,000, he said. Neither of the buildings were designed for elevators and it could be very difficult to have them installed at

A short, straight line

It's a short, straight line between the signs and the gun.

The news of the fourteen women massacred in Montreal hit me deep in the gut. I felt revulsion, anger, guilt, and yes, even complicity. It was one calm, apparently rational young man with a gun and a grudge. It could have happened anywhere at any time.

Directions

by Edward Moll

Except this pitiful individual deliberately chose to kill women. "You're a bunch of feminists" he cried and bullets destroyed female lives and forever scarred the survivors and the families. It was a horrifying, ultimate, but not entirely surprising logical extension of the daily exploitation of women by men. You don't have to look far: there are the put-downs, the stray hand of the boss, the "dumb broad" jokes, the wolf-whistles, the fear women have of going out at night, the date-rapes, the wife beaten by her husband and having to lie about the bruises to her friends.

There are signs around Minden proclaiming loudly that at Gelert Gardens, or at the Rockcliffe you can find "Girls, Girls, Girls!". They advertise that jiggling breasts, heaving crotches and backsides constitute "adult" entertainment. They reduce women to body parts for men to leer at, fondle, penetrate, own and finally to dispose of. The women become performing pieces of meat for the men to exploit and consume. The women have their humanity stolen and the men lose their humanity in the theft.

Does anyone complain? Only if there is a Male "exotic dancer" in the neighbourhood. It seems that this attempt to arouse female heterosexuality, or (God forbid!) male homosexuality is something that threatens the alleged moral standards of our community. However, as a beloved colleague pointed out, the reason no one complains when the female strippers come to town is that this does indeed represent community standards of normal sexual power and attraction. That it dehumanizes both the audience and the performer is not even considered.

That is disturbing.

And it disturbs me more than it should take fourteen dead women in Montréal last week to write this.

It's a short, straight line between the signs and the gun.

Opening

With the snip of the ribbon, Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Ray Moore officially opens another new business in the community. the Reeve was on hand last Thursday to officiate at the opening of the Highland Guardian Drug Store on Main Street, next to the Rhodes Medical Centre. While the full service drug store has been in operation for a number of weeks, the opening celebration was delayed until last week. Joining Moore during the ceremony was pharmacist/owner Amin Shivji, second from right. He commented how pleased he was to be a part of the Minden business community and he was looking forward to meeting the pharmaceutical and drug store needs of area residents. Sharing the honours at each end of the ceremonial ribbon were, left, Sharon

Wells and Melanie Tripp, right. Also on hand for the opening was Roger Austen, third from right, regional sales supervisor for Guardian Drugs. Those passing the store during last week will have noticed the attention-grabbing Guardian balloon parked on the roof of the building. While the giant inflatable turned heads during the day, it presented a more colourful sight at night when illuminated from the interior. The shot at the above shows the night scene of the new store and the promotional balloon.

Initial work on Minden traffic study praised, Results will be useful to several committees

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The traffic study proposed for Minden's Main Street will not cost a lot of money and its findings will be used by a variety of municipal committees, says a member of the committee administering the project.

Bill Payne reported to last Thursday's meeting of the Planning Advisory Committee on the progress of the study.

The traffic study was proposed by the planning committee, and approved by council because of concerns about traffic safety along the Bobcaygeon Road. The area of most concern is the point of the hill behind Home Hardware. A rock cut obscures the vision of cars driving around the bend in the road.

An ad hoc committee consisting of Payne, Public Utilities chairman Bob Sisson, Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry and Road Superintendent Clayton Cameron was formed to design the parameters for the study.

Payne said the committee decided that the municipality doesn't need a "big, expensive study," and any information that is produced will be more than the planning committee has now.

The results of the study will be available to other groups, such as the Public Utilities Committee, that may find the information useful, said Payne.

Some of the information for the study will come from a Ministry of Transportation traffic survey of Highway 35 scheduled to be conducted in 1990. Payne said he wanted to find out how many cars travel through the village from the ministry traffic counts of the four entrances into Minden from the highway.

Planning committee member Verne

Graham asked that the rock outcropping which is causing some of the concern be referred to as part of the hill. He has been approached by people recently who were concerned that the 'rock' being referred to was the stone he had placed at the end of his driveway to serve as a marker.

Payne said one possible way to improve the corner is to blow a portion off the top of the outcropping to allow drivers to see further around the corner. He said that when the storm sewers are (more on page 21)

Eakins finds it hard to believe there are no area seniors capable of climbing stairs

this stage, he said.

Manson said the authority has to consider its spending priorities. He said these are older buildings that need regular upkeep and as long as the units are filled, it's hard to justify spend a great deal of money on elevators.

The decision to go ahead with the 40 new units in Haliburton illustrates the province's recognition of the importance of providing quality accommodation for seniors in this community, said Eakins. The Haliburton Community Housing Corporation is now eligible for interest-free provincial loans to assist in developing its proposals to the point at which it may be given final approval.

Eakins said he worked very hard to support the Corporation's application. If the project had been turned down, Eakins speculated that people would have viewed it as a "terrible blow to Haliburton."

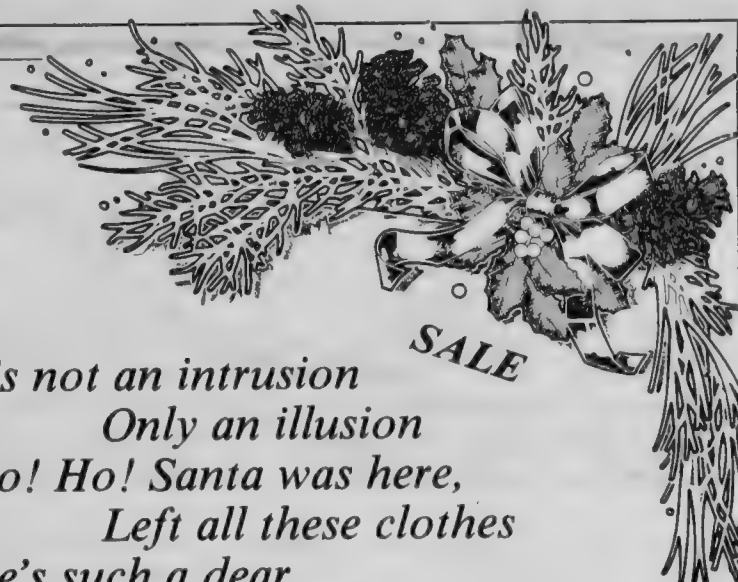

Eakins said that by providing suitable housing, the province hopes to lessen the need for institutional care. "I don't think people want to stay in institutions and the government is looking at ways to keep people in their homes."

In response to the obvious need for elevators at the Housing Authority's apartments, Eakins said he is confident that eventually all will be better equipped. He said this may be possible with provincial funding or from community support.

However, he said he finds it hard to believe that there are so few people in the area who can't climb stairs. If a person is moving from a house to one of these units, it's likely they are used to climbing stairs, he said. The absence of a waiting list for these units goes beyond the fact that there are no elevators, he said.

Eakins said he and the provincial government have demonstrated a commitment to providing access for the handicapped. All new buildings of this nature are equipped with elevators, he said. In addition, he noted that while he was Minister of Tourism, he initiated a program to help finance projects to make municipal facilities more accessible to the handicapped. He also noted that while he was Minister of Municipal Affairs, he insisted that all advance polling stations for municipal elections be accessible to the handicapped. By 1991, he said all polling stations will have to be accessible.

No room in society for racism or bigotry trying circumstances. The visit to Minden December 3 was a result of that invitation. It followed on the heels of a visit to Toronto by Rev. Moll and The Times Editor Russ Duhaime. They were honoured at a B'Nai Brith luncheon several weeks ago at which time their leadership and the community's response to the racist rally was applauded.

Following the meal, a number of speakers addressed the gathering including the vice president of B'Nai Brith, Frank Wilson. He outlined some of his organization's activities in combatting racism and in particular anti-semitism. "Racism, bigotry and anti-semitism have no place in our world," he told the gathering. "As had been said in the past, 'Never again!'

He again praised the efforts of Rev. Moll and Duhaime noting it made him proud to be a Canadian Jew when the two Minden residents were honoured in Toronto several weeks ago. We saw Minden stand up and be counted last July. God Bless all of you. Shalom."

The gathering also viewed a video presentation prepared by B'Nai Brith. It examined the problem of anti-semitism and focused on the way Minden responded to the situation last summer.

Vice President of B'Nai Brith Canada, Frank Wilson addresses a luncheon gathering of the Minden United Church December 3. The members of the Jewish organization in Toronto were invited to Minden so the community could express its appreciation for support given during the stand against the white supremacist rally held here in July.

Minden beats Bobcaygeon

member doing all that was asked of him.

Both teams tried hard to score and we thought that the first period would be scoreless, but it was Oak-Ridges who broke through to score the 1st goal.

Minden followed right behind with Andrew McKelvey scoring from an excellent pass crossed by Dennis Woods.

In the second period both teams tightened their defensive and left the score at 1-1.

The Minden fans were right behind the lads, trying to encourage them every way they could.

We were entertained by some good hockey by both teams, but Oak-Ridges proved to be the stronger team, scoring another goal in the last few minutes of play.

Minden 1 Oak-Ridges 2
Andrew McKelvey was the M.V.P. for this game for Minden.

Saturday afternoon Minden were back at home for their league game against Bobcaygeon. With two games played back to back we felt sure that Minden might be low on steam, but we were proven wrong when the boys came out straining on the reins.

Jeff Wray shot the puck into the back of Bobcaygeons net assisted by Andrew McKelvey in the first few seconds of play.

Minden were hungry and were giving Bob no chance to get the puck across their blue line. Before we knew what had happened Minden scored another goal this time Dennis Woods scored on a pass from Marty Dettman.

Minden could do nothing wrong and we were to see a third goal when Jeff Wray scored assisted by Andrew McKelvey.

We were still in the first period of play, but Minden were on the fighting side and we were to see a fourth goal when David Raback scored from a pass by Chris Eskilon.

In the second period Minden let the pressure off for a split second and Bobcaygeon sneaked in to score their first goal.

This led Minden to tighten the play and we were to see a goalless third period leaving the score at 4-1 for Minden. "Way to go guys!"

Saturday night and here we are back at Haliburton for another tournament game (if the boys are not hockeyed out, I'm sure on the way).

This time Minden were to face Bancroft, this was to be their fourth game in just over 24 hours.

Minden tried hard but each player has played himself out.

Bancroft won with a 6-0 victory.

Dennis Woods was M.V.P. for Minden in spite of this loss Minden could still hold their heads high they had won the most important game of the day.

Sunday and hockey was not over yet, I must apologize to the players and you as I did not have my trusty pen and pad with me.

Minden was to face Orillia, who is classed as an 'A' centre, Minden being an 'E' centre.

Not too much hope was held for Minden, but as the saying goes you can not keep a good man down.

The game was fast and tough and Minden were not going to give in without a fight. Orillia kept the pressure on but Minden held them back until the last few minutes of the first period when Orillia scored the first goal.

The pressure was on and Ministry recommends refusal to severances

mittee members to pass the severances, saying that Ministry of Environment concerns would be dealt with by the county's Land Division Committee.

The municipality should render a decision based on whether or not the severances meet the requirements of Minden's Official Plan and zoning by-law and not on the basis of Ministry of Environment concerns.

It had been suggested earlier that the township may be able to pass the severances by requiring that Clement sign an agreement which would release the township from any liability for problems that might arise on the property from the landfill site.

However, in a letter to the township, Terry O'Neill, the Ministry of the Environment's district officer, said his office is not aware of any provision for a waiver of the requirements of the Environmental Protection Act by an agreement between the property owner and the township.

"It is strongly recommended that no such agreements be entered into," O'Neill said.

In a second letter from the ministry, dated December 4, Senior Environmental Officer Brian Howden said the severance applications have been reviewed and "the Ministry of the Environment is opposed to the granting of these consents without additional information and review."

Howden said the applicants should be required to provide the required information and the review should include the present and proposed landfill operation, traffic flow, buffering between the landfill and residential uses and sources of water supply for the lots.

The township's lawyer, Fraser Rogers, advised that the proposed agreement would not offer Minden much protection if dump-related problems arose in the future.

Adamson said that just because the township was advised not to enter into the agreement doesn't mean the severances shouldn't be approved.

Planning committee member Jim Garbutt disagreed. He said that if the severances were approved without the agreement, and the property changed owners, "the next guy raises the devil every time something happens with the dump." Garbutt said he couldn't understand why the agreement wouldn't protect the township from future liability.

Chairman Dean Elliot said Rogers feels the agreement would "fly in the face of the Environmental Protection Act."

Reeve Ray Moore said the township has spent a considerable amount of money on extending the life of the dump and has to consider what the impact of granting severances across the road would be. He said there would be no problem granting a building permit for the existing lot but if the committee considered allowing the severance it would be "very remiss."

Adamson said the intent of the Environmental Protection Act is to ensure that new landfill sites are not established within a quarter of a mile of residential development, not to forbid the development of residential property within a quarter of a mile of existing landfill sites. "It doesn't work both ways," he said.

Howden disagrees. In a telephone interview Friday, he said the Act says landfill sites must not be operated within a quarter mile of residential property and it doesn't matter which is established first.

Committee member Verne Graham supported Moore's statement about the importance of protecting the landfill sites. He said the Scotch Line dump is a good landfill site and development nearby would threaten its operation.

"If you're going to include my property in a buffer-zone you should buy it," said Clement.

But Garbutt said no one is preventing him from building a house, he just can't sever the property.

Clement said the property's proximity to the dump will not cause a problem. He said he had two test wells dug and there is no problem with the water and said the life of the landfill site had been extended because there is no leaching.

The committee voted unanimously to reject the severance application. The matter will go to the December 14 meeting of council and then on to the Land Division Committee.

An average of 900 vehicles turn into town every day installed, it will enable the road to be widened.

The ministry carried out a traffic count on Highway 35 in 1985 and Payne shared some of the findings with the committee.

There was an average of 3,224 cars a day travelling north on Highway 35 towards Minden. Of those, 900 cars a day turned into the village along the Bobcaygeon Road. Because the figures are just averages, the number of cars would be higher than that in the summer and lower in the winter.

Payne said there is a possibility of grants being available to pay for students to do some of the work for the study. He estimated that the cost of the project would be less than $1,000.

Reeve Ray Moore told Payne "there's certainly nothing wrong with what you've done so far." He said the results from the study will be vital for updating Minden's roads needs study.

Friends bid fond farewell as Ellises prepare to head home

Students and teachers from Archie Stouffer Elementary School, parents, neighbours and acquaintances gathered December 1 to pay tribute to some dear friends who will be leaving Minden soon for Australia. The guests of honour at the party, held at the Minden Community Centre, were Peter and Wendy Ellis and their sons Mathew and Luke. They have been living in Minden since last January, here on a teacher exchange which saw Minden teacher Nick Pawluch and his wife Linda and family travel to Australia for a year.

Despite the fact the Ellis family will not be leaving for several more weeks (their departure from Minden is scheduled for December 22), the tributes and expressions of love were heartfelt and moving. Among those to comment on the many experiences in Minden over the past year were community sponsor Rev. Ed Moll, school sponsor fellow teacher David McKinlay, school principal Mackay Brydon and Reeve Ray Moore.

Students who had been in Peter Ellis' class this past year, and who had learned a great deal about the land 'down-under' performed a number of traditional Australian songs. Following the musical selections, they presented the family with a book of photographs of the Highlands.

Speaking on behalf of their many friends in the Minden area, Reeve Moore presented the family with a special book entitled 'Minden Memories'. Each page contained photographs of families in the community and personal comments.

The evening included a number of musical selections offered by vocalist Lisa Tomlinson and Melissa Stephens, a carol sing and instrumental music by Melissa and Douglas Cutler.

The children were also treated to a visit from a familiar gentleman dressed in red. However, several items in his entourage, including a crocodile under one arm and the pair of kangaroos which accompanied him, provided proof that he wasn't just who everyone thought he was. The special visitor distributed candy and treats to the children after revealing his identity as Crocodile D. Claus.

It was obviously an emotional moment for Peter and Wendy Ellis when they responded at the close of the evening. They expressed their appreciation to everyone for the warm welcome they had received to the community and for the kind words offered during the farewell party. They said their year in Minden will be a memory they will cherish for many years to come and offered to welcome any and all visitors from this community to their home in New South Wales.

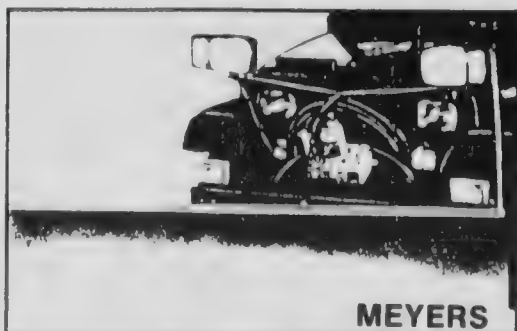

Before the formalities ended, those in attendance paid tribute to Marion and Bruce Harris and Irma Armstrong who organized the special evening.

Peter and Wendy Ellis with their sons Luke and Matthew will soon be leaving Minden for their home in Australia.

End-to-end action results in 5-1 loss for Minden

by Brenda Casey

Sunday November 26, the Tri-County Novice "B" team travelled to Ops for a 4:30 game. Although the game was end to end, they were able to down us 5-1

Our only goal was scored by Adam Durkin unassisted. This was their first loss away from home.

Thursday, November 30 they were on the road again. This time they travelled to Woodville for a 6:30 game. The result being a 5-0 win in our favour. B.J. Redner marked a hat trick assisted twice by Adam Durkin. Durkin then popped in two of his own assisted by Michael Hamilton.

Saturday, December 2 was to be the last game of our Trial Schedule. The Minden boys were ready for action, only to be disappointed when Oakwood cancelled the game.

ASSAULT

Gerrit Schuitemaker, 41, of Kinmount, was charged with assault causing bodily harm after police were called to his residence on Nov. 26 as the result of a domestic dispute.

FALSE PRETENCES

Linda Shirley Woodburn, 24, of Carnarvon, was charged with four counts of False Pretences. The charges involve four cheques writted during August and September for about $213. Woodburn is to appear in Provincial Court Minden on Jan. 5.

WINTER DRIVING TIP

It is an offence to operate a motor vehicle in a manner that anything will obstruct the driver's view of the highway and any intersecting highways. During the winter months, snow, frosted and fogged windows are a major problem and the cause of many motor vehicle accidents. Motorists are reminded to take the extra time to ensure the windows, front, side and rear, are clear prior to driving.

How the new OHIP fees affect you

by Doreen Hawman

The centre is receiving a number of inquiries concerning the elimination of OHIP premiums. There seems to be much confusion as to who will pay for the health care coverage.

The following information obtained from the Ministry of Revenue should answer any further questions you may have:

In January, 1990, the Employer Health Tax (EHT) will replace OHIP premiums. Ontario residents will continue to receive health care coverage, but will no longer have to pay OHIP premiums.

Who pays the EHT? All employers with permanent establishments in Ontario, including corporations, individuals, hospitals, school boards and universities, government and non-profit and charitable organizations.

How is it calculated? By multiplying the total amount of remuneration (gross calendar year payroll) paid to employees in Ontario by the tax rate applicable to that amount.

Tax rates: Employers with permanent establishments in Ontario must pay the tax at a graduated tax rate ranging from 0.98 per cent to 1.95 per cent annually, depending on total annual remuneration.

How often are payments made? Employers paying over $400,000 in remuneration annually to employees will be required to make monthly instalment payments beginning in January 1990. Other employers will make quarterly instalment payments starting in April 1990. Employers will receive a remittance statement prior to the instalment due date.

Who is exempt? Persons who are self-employed or retired; partners in a partnership who have no employees on their payroll; embassies and consulates; Native people transacting business on a reserve and payrolls relating to Native people working for a corporation on a reserve.

Annual tax return: Following the end of each calendar year employers must file an annual tax return which will include a declaration

The years of unselfish devotion to her community were recognized on December 2 for Isabelle Gibbs, who was named Stanhope Township Citizen of the Year at the annual Christmas Party at the firefighters' Hall. Obviously surprised her name was called for this honour, Gibbs told the large gathering that she had someone else picked out for the honour. "I had someone else in mind," said the former librarian. "I had it all planned." In addition to her service at the Library, Gibbs is a bit of a fixture at St. Peter's Church where she has played the organ for the past 58 years.

Atoms manage 2-2 tie against Orillia in tough-fought battle to the end

the Minden fans wanted a goal, they were rewarded when Minden's Tommy Bagshaw took the puck through Orillia's defence to score Minden's first goal unassisted.

In the second period Orillia tried hard to score but Minden's goalie Justin Rowden was on top form, time after time he deflected the puck.

Orillia kept up the pressure and managed to score in the last few seconds of play. Both teams came out in the third period determined to fight to the last, but it was Minden who was to score when Ryan Ladurantaye scored on a pass from Jeff Wray. Minden were able to hold Orillia off leaving the score at 2 all.

Minden's M.V.P. was Jeff Wray.

Prohibition without extinction just drives up prices about. Then we all grew up, most of us left it for the next generation. Oh, nature weeded out a handful of unstable individuals. Like a ray of light showing us those who had other problems. But most people blamed it on drugs rather than the deep-set emotional problem that drew them there. As with most things in life, one had to decide what was dangerous and what was borderline. It's all part of growing up.

Now we're older, and at our house, purely by choice, we don't even have beer in the fridge...who needs it? The strongest drug we have is aspirin. Don't get me wrong, I would like nothing better than to hear that all drugs and alcohol suddenly vanished from the face of the earth. But if it's there and if curiosity brings our children to look, how can you throw them in jail? Massive prohibition without total extinction is what drives prices up and opens the door for lucrative poisons. This lesson was learned before with alcohol and the creation of 'white lightning.' Overprotecting our kids (and adults) is to deny freedom. Plain and simple. If we can't see temptation, we lose the ability to make up our own minds. To choose between right and wrong. To show intelligence. A two-month jail sentence for high school students is utter lunacy. Who is the moron who dreamed up that one?

Before all you 'public opinionists' continue on your quest for sterilization consider this: can you afford a high-priced lawyer should one of your children be in the wrong place at the wrong time? What's the next step... Lock your daughter at home because her boyfriend might experiment some night and she's charged as an accomplice?

What's down the road, consider this:

my friend wouldn't have drowned if there had been a law forbidding swimming in these lakes. So and so wouldn't have frozen to death in the woods if snowmobiles were outlawed. How many deaths from car accidents? All those other potentially hazardous things we can get involved with... wars, planes, trains, the list is endless.

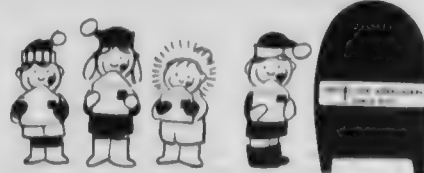

Don't legalize drugs, but better education and source controls are what's needed, not a holocaust of our children. Where will it end? Lighten up, deterrents are helpful, but don't throw my future 16-year-old daughter in jail for just being there or having human curiosity. Let's keep the Gestapo out of Canada.

Well, at least I've still got my tobacco. But wait! A law is coming out in January which states if I'm caught smoking in the work place, I'll be faced with a 'no mercy' fine, even if there are no non-smokers employed there. The freedom of choice of being considerate is about to fall.

Maybe I'll change my name to Schmirnoff.

David Smiley,
Minden.

Minden battles to scoreless tie

by Brenda Casey

On Saturday, November 25 Minden played host to Little Britain. Both teams played a terrific game. They seemed to be equally matched in every way.

Even though Minden kept the puck down in Little Britain's end most of the game, they were unable to score, ending the game with a 0-0 score.

Nice game, Minden.

On Saturday, November 25, Minden hosted Oakwood. Both teams played well, but Minden's team certainly got their skates and sticks together.

That even counts for the stick that got broken.

All three periods left the audience on the edge of their seats, or if you like, on their feet.

With everyone cheering them on to victory, Minden skated off with the game, a score of 7-1.

Goals made by Minden:

No. 10 - Bill Fountain assist. No. 9 - Paul Daniels.

No. 16 - Jordan Barclay, unassisted.

No. 14 - Shane Walker, assist. No. 10 - Bill Fountain.

No. 4 - Anthony Weerdenberg, unassisted.

No. 10 - Bill Fountain.

No. 8 - Gary Kernohan, assist. No. 7 - Trevor Cole.

No. 8 - Gary Kernohan, unassisted.

Redmen lose to Rams 7-2

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Redmen were given a rough ride by the Kenner Rams last Wednesday night. After keeping pace through the first period, the Redmen fell apart and lost the game by a score of 7-2. Kenner took an early lead when they scored just 20 seconds after the opening face-off but Haliburton tied it up on a short-handed goal by Scott Russel. The Redmen briefly took a 2-1 lead at the start of the second period on a Wyatt Nesbitt goal assisted by Phillip Johnston. But it was all Kenner for the rest of the night. The Rams scored four unanswered goals in the second period and added two more in the third to round out the scoring.

Pee Wees play well in loss to Haliburton

by Marlene Mestroni

Last Tuesday night Minden faced off against Haliburton at the Haliburton Arena.

Within the first three minutes of play Aaron Tomlinson saw his chance and accomplished a fast break-away carrying the puck up the ice and sinking it deep into Haliburton's net.

Throughout the first period the Pee Wees were hot! They skated fast, held their positions and never let up on the puck. Minden received it's one and only penalty of the game at 6:49 in the first period. Haliburton received two penalties in the first period, one at 6:49 and 4:20.

The beginning of the second period, Haliburton's

Billy Koz scored, assisted by Jamie McMahon, making it 1-1.

Minden was determined to get back their lead and with 41 seconds left in the second period, David Short carried the puck up the ice and passed it to Todd Redgrave, who scored Minden's second goal.

At the end of the second period, you could sense the positive energies and rising excitement of the players and the spectators. Both teams were giving their all and the spectators were watching good hockey.

This year the Pee Wee team welcomes a few new players, who are not only new to the team, but have never skated or played hockey before. They are Scott Bacon, our most recent newcomer, and Anthony Mestroni, who joined in October. My hat goes off to both players for their valued contributions, which were evidenced during this game.

Well, back to the game! It's now the third period and the score is 2-1 for Minden. But wait, Haliburton's moving up, they're in position, they score! Haliburton scores again and it's now 3-2 for Haliburton.

The Minden Pee Wees seemed to have lost their concentration, they're slowing down. Haliburton keeps up the pressure and are able to score the last goal of the game, ending it 4-2 for Haliburton.

Minden's next game is Wednesday, December 13 in Omemee, at 8:30.

Home puts a ding in Stamp Fuels' armour

A race is finally on for first place in the Minden Men's Recreational Hockey League.

Stamp Fuels' seemingly invulnerability was shattered last Monday by their closest opponent. Home Hardware moved to within one game of the lead by downing Stamp Fuels 7-6 in the second game of the night at the Minden arena. This was the first loss of the season for Stamp Fuels.

With a record of six wins and two losses, Home is just one game back of Stamp Fuels record of seven and one. Hartwick Construction is in third place, followed by the Rockcliffe Tavern, The Times and the winless Westside team.

There is also a hotly-contested race on for the scoring title. Hartwick's Brian Shaw scored 12 goals in the past two games to move into the lead along with Stamp Fuels' Lawrence Loughheed and

The Times' Ivan Ingram. All three players have racked up 18 goals this season. Scott Hamilton and Craig Crowe are just off the pace with 15 goals each.

In the first game of the night last Monday, Westside took another thumping, this time from Hartwick. With five goals from Shaw, three from Billy Whittaker and one each from Jeff Howe and Dave Dollo, Hartwick compiled a 10-4 victory.

Scoring for Westside in this game were Kim Hamilton, Bernie Upton, Norm Barry and Sid MacKiegan.

The second game of the night was the big surprise. Home Hardware built up an impressive lead in the first two periods and held off Stamp Fuels' comeback efforts to take the 7-6 win.

Scott Hamilton scored three times for the Home team, while Kim Colliss added two. Peter Walker and Dave Pettes added one each.

Scoring for Stamp Fuels were Greg Newell, Tom Haley, Lawrence Loughheed, Greg Carpenter, Craig Crowe and Daryl Ward.

The final game of the night saw the Rockcliffe fall 8-3 to The Times. With two goals each from Ingram, Eldon Bull and Scott Gartshore, The Times never let go of the lead. Other Times goals were scored by Dave Rodgers and Dennis McKee.

Dave Hartwick, Murray Beetlestone and Ted Pilcher shared the scoring for the Rockcliffe.

The previous week saw Stamp Fuels defend its perfect record with a 6-4 win over the Rockcliffe in the opening game.

Exon Gravel led the way for the winners with two goals. Singles came from Loughheed, Greg Carpenter, Crowe and Louis Reynolds.

Mark Lund scored twice for the Rockcliffe in this match. Collin Newell and Doug Ray added one each.

In the second game of the night, The Times fell victim to Hartwick by a 14-8 margin. Shaw pumped in seven goals for Hartwick while Billy Whittaker added four and Ted Vasey put in another two.

Eldon Bull scored three of The Times' goals and Dave Rodgers scored two. Dennis McKee, Ivan Ingram and Scott Gartshore added one each.

There were no surprises in the final game of the night as Westside accepted another 6-3 loss from Home. Andy Campbell scored three of Home's goals and singles came from Scott Hamilton, Barry Shaw and Kim Colliss.

Bernie Upton scored twice for Westside and Mike Keaney added one.

Long way to go in Seal campaign

The Lung Association's Christmas Seal Campaign has been underway since November 1. Once again, this year, the residents of Victoria and Haliburton Counties are responding generously to this annual appeal for funds. Over $20,000 in donations have been received. There is, however, still a long way to go to reach this year's goal of $36,000.

The Lung Association, Victoria-Haliburton Counties, is urging everyone to return the green envelope with a donation, today. And use those Christmas Seals on all holiday mail. Christmas Seals are a hug on every card!

Atoms short of double-digit shut-out win

by Linda Hopkins

Such a show last Wednesday evening when the Minden Atoms Tri-County League played in Haliburton for the first time this year. Not knowing what to expect the boys were prepared and eager to meet their adversary. Well, it took Raymond Ranson 35 seconds into the game to start the numbers on the scoreboard flashing. From there on they changed eight more times during the game in Minden's favour. The boys certainly tried hard to reach double digits but walked away with a 9 - 0 win. Great practice.

Six times the puck passed Haliburton's goalie in the first period, once in the second and twice in the third.

Goals are also credited to Chuck Hopkins, Donald Todd, Gavin Gartshore, a double for Adam Carpenter and a hat trick for Nathan Stephenson. Assists go to Gartshore, Hopkins, Stephenson, Ranson and Sheamus Donnery.

The heaters were on in the arena area for this game and while the fans enjoyed the heat, I am sure goalie Ashley Walker was also a little warmer. With one shot on goal during the whole game, a fellow tends to get a little cool with no activity in his end. Credit must also go to defencemen

Rob Camelon and Ben Ripley during this game for their excellent efforts in immediately shutting the doors on any attempts made by Haliburton.

This game shouldn't be taken lightly though as we have to meet Haliburton three more times this schedule and you can bet your bippy they will be out to change that score. Keep practising hard boys. There's tougher games coming.

Our next home game is the 19th of December when Haliburton comes over to our ice for a rematch at 7 p.m. That will be it until after New Year when January 6 Haliburton comes over again at 3 p.m. to start the last leg of this schedule. These should be two good games. See you there.

Tammy Howard had the pleasant task of donating some of money earned by student magazine sales to two very worthy causes. Above Gary McKnight accepts a donation to the Hyland Crest Bus Fund and below, John Dennys accepts the school's contribution to the Help A Village Effort (HAVE).

A S E S students donate money to charities

The students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School have completed another successful magazine sale drive and last Tuesday they shared their success with two worthy charities.

Student Council Prime Minister Tammy Howard presented cheques to the Help a Village Effort and the Hyland Crest Bus Fund.

The magazine sales earned the school a profit of $5,757.32 and the students decided to donate 10 per cent of the earnings to worthy causes.

Howard presented HAVE member John Dennys with a cheque for $370 to go towards outfitting a classroom in the African country of The Gambia. The donation is being matched by the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) and the $740 will be enough to supply a classroom of 50 students and one teacher for a year.

Gary McKnight accepted a cheque for $205 to go towards the purchase of a new bus for the Hyland Crest Senior's Home.

The rest of the money raised will go towards funding items like field trips and school t-shirts and sweaters.

* These offers may not be combined. Retail buyers choosing a reduced financing rate in lieu of cash rebate are eligible for 6.9% financing over a maximum 24-month term. Other low financing rates for longer terms available with approved credit. Special financing is available when you purchase or lease any new 1990 or prior year Tempo or Topaz. Delivery must be taken from dealer inventory. Example: $10,000 financed over 24 months at 6.9% APR, the monthly payment is $447.27, the cost of borrowing is $734.48. Assuming a rebate of $750 as the alternative, should you choose a reduced financing rate instead of the cash rebate, legislation requires that the amount of the rebate must be included in the cost of borrowing in order to arrive at an effective interest rate. In the example given, the effective interest rate would be 13.66% and the total cost of borrowing will vary depending upon the amount financed, term of loan and financing rate. Financing offer on 1989 models includes dealer participation. See Dealer for details.  Cash back and APR offer ends December 31, 1989. You may keep the cash or apply it to your transaction. Cash back offer on 1989 models includes dealer participation. See dealer for details. † Lease rate calculated to provide similar value. Best selling claims based on calendar year 1988 R.L. Pollak Registrations.  Special Value Package #101A (Tempo), #331A (Topaz). May not be immediately available at all dealers.

Several new attraction in store for derby

The thousands of spectators who will line Minden's Main Street this January for the Minden Sled Dog Derby will have several new attractions to take.

Not only will visitors be able to watch world-champion athletes from all over North America compete for part of the $22,000 purse, there will be a variety of activities for them to take part in.

The sixth running of the world's largest limited-class speed race will be held on Saturday, January 13, and Sunday, January 14, in the County Town of the Haliburton Highlands. (Snow date: February 17 and 18.) The race is sponsored for the fifth year in a row by Martin Pet Foods of Elmira, Ontario.

As always, most of the excitement will be in the middle of Main Street. Everyone will have a good view of the dogs jumping in their harnesses in the starting chute, impatient to be off, and then again as they return back up Main Street in the opposite direction, pulling for the finish line.

This year, organizers have added some new features to the weekend. For instance, in addition to 1,000 canines of the four-legged variety brought by the mushers, there will be a two-legged "dog" on Main Street. Sennit Puppet—creators of "Domer", the plush toy symbol of Toronto's Skydome—have created a human-sized husky that walks and talks and will be on hand throughout both day to greet the visitors and enchant the children.

Scandinavian kick-sledging is catching on in Canada as a new way to enjoy the woods in winter. Imagine a chair perched on two skis with a bar between to hold on to. Three kicks and you're set for a long glide. If you get tired, you can sit on the chair and enjoy the view. Kick-sledging is less strenuous than cross-country skiing and there's less risk of falling. Visitors will be able to watch the sport demonstrated on Main Street between the eight- and four-dog heats and to try it out themselves.

And, as a change of pace from all this athletic activity, there will be an exhibit and sale of work by leading artists and artisans of the Haliburton Highlands.

The features visitors have come to expect from past years at the Minden Sled Dog Derby will be on hand too. The kid-and-mutt race will take place on Saturday afternoon, after the official heats are over. Each team consists of one kid and one trusted dog who race the length of Main Street. The fun starts when the dog gets distracted from the task at hand and wanders over towards the spectators or just generally loses track of where the finish line is. But the best part is that every entrant is a winner.

The "dog pit" where mushers park their trucks and care for their animals will also be open to spectators. It's a great opportunity to talk with mushers from all over North America about their chosen sport, as well as check out the dogs and fuss over the puppies.

The Haliburton Highlands is a well known summer recreational playground. The Minden Sled Dog Derby is one of several events that show off its beauties in winter. The extensive tourist facilities of the Haliburton Highlands are ready to welcome all those visiting the area for the race.

Kid's Korner

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters.

Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Canada continues to obliterate aboriginalities

On November 5, CBC broadcast a special report on the Amazon rainforest. Part of the program chronicled the invasion and destruction of territories belonging to Indians - the Surui, Yanomami and Kaiapo.

From a population estimated at five million before the arrival of Europeans, Amazonian Indians have been brutally reduced along with the flora and fauna of the rainforest to just over 200,000!

Canadians responded magnificently when Paia-kon, a Kaiapo chief came to Toronto and Ottawa a year ago to plead his case. But the horror stories befalling Brazilian Indians are sadly familiar to Canada's original inhabitants. Canadian bigotry - revealed by inquiries into cases like Donald Marshall in Nova Scotia, J.J. Harper and Helen Betty Osborne in Manitoba - quickly disappears behind a veil of guilt, denial and continuing prejudice.

We erase the legitimacy of aboriginal land claims by saying that Europeans "discovered" North America and that Canada was "founded" by the French and English, yet the continent was already occupied by dozens of nations of people with rich and diverse cultures when Columbus arrived.

The native people taught the newcomers how to survive and explore the continent, then the foreigners unilaterally claimed the land, made new laws and systematically set out to obliterate the aboriginal peoples. It continues to this day. Consider the following story.

This year, it was announced that the Ingenika Indian band, 235 people in northeastern British Columbia, received 1300 hectares and $12.2 million in compensation for loss of their land. They had waited

by Dr. David Suzuki

20 years, since their land was flooded by the Williston Reservoir on the Peace River. (Information about the Ingenika can be obtained from Citizens for Public Justice, 3821 Lister St., Burnaby, B.C. V5G 2B9). The Ingenika are descendants of a nation called the Sekani, or "mountain people" who once numbered over 3,000. They ranged over a vast territory of hundreds of kilometres along the Peace River.

European explorers arrived in their territory, in 1793 and soon fur trading led the Sekani to focus on trapping. In the late 1800's, invading goldminers, settlers and missionaries forced the Sekani to the edge of extinction. In 1916, without any consideration of Indian traditional territory and customs, the predecessors of the Ingenika were given a few hundred acres of reserve. Only their remoteness enabled them to continue to trap, hunt and fish.

But just as the Amazon beckons irresistibly to Brazilians, the seemingly unpopulated areas of B.C.'s north are seen as the province's potential for development and resources.

In 1956, B.C. signed a memorandum of intent to dam the Peace River and in 1959 established the Peace River Power Development Co. Only in 1962, when plans for a dam were well under way, was an attempt made to contact and tell the Indians. By 1968, the dams were finished and Ingenika land flooded with little more than a perfunctory attempt to inform the people of the changes to come.

Most of the natives spoke little English and had not understood the implications of the dam until the water began to rise. They were devastated as traditional hunting grounds and sacred burial sites were flooded. The water was too polluted to drink and the waterways unnavigable. Water levels fluctuated up to 40 feet at the whim of B.C. Hydro.

Without native input, government officials chose sites for reserves in "foreign" territory far beyond Ingenika ancestral lands. Most moved to Ingenika Point which they knew and there they sought to establish new trapping lines and survive on land far poorer than they had known. Then for almost two decades, the Ingenika were forgotten.

In 1967, Stephen Rogers, then minister for native affairs, visited Ingenika Point, and found "the living conditions are the most primitive I've ever seen."

The natives were riddled with disease, were malnourished and lived in 26 shacks with no insulation, running water or even the electricity for which their lands had been flooded!

Yet even with a settlement, the agony of the Ingenika people continues.

The reservoir gives access to the forests so Fletcher Challenge and Finlay Forest Industries propose to log 5,000,000 hectares in the area while Curragh Resources is proposing to start a lead-zinc mine that could pollute the water of the Ingenika even further.

Canadians are deeply concerned over the fate of tropical rainforests and their human inhabitants. But it must not relieve us from confronting the terrible history of destruction and oppression still going on in our own country.

Minden OMHA Novices have winning record

by Mel Flood

Minden OMHA novice team has played a lot of hockey since the beginning of the season and this is a catch-up column to let you know how the boys have been faring. First on behalf of the boys on the team many thanks to Re/Max Real Estate for the new sweaters.

Since our last report we have played nine league games and one tournament.

Nov. 11 against Ops 5-3 in favour of Ops.

Nov. 18 against Little Britain 2-0 in favour of Minden.

Nov. 19 against Haliburton 2-2 tie.

Nov. 23 against Oakwood 8-1 in favour of Oakwood.

Nov. 25 against Ops 5-2 in favour of Ops.

Nov. 26 against Little Britain 5-0 in favour of Minden.

Nov. 30 against Bobcaygeon 3-2 in favour of Minden.

Dec. 2 against Cannington 5-0 in favour of Minden.

Dec. 3 against Beaverton 6-0 in favour of Beaverton.

The Beaverton game is the one I would like to key on, as this was a rough and chippy game on the part of Beaverton team. The officiating was non-existent. If this is how the Beaverton Hockey Association teaches their boys the game of hockey, I feel sorry for their boys. Minden should be very proud of the way the boys conducted themselves, which is a credit to the Minden Minor Hockey Association.

The tournament on Dec. 2 in Woodville, we won our first game against Cannington and were knocked out by a team from Oshawa, which went on to win the tournament.

Team record — 6 wins, 4 losses, 2 ties.

Next game: Dec. 16 - 1:00 p.m. Minden Arena.

Canada leads world in computerized maps

Canada has become one of the first nations to make available computerized maps of the entire country, John MacDougall, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, Jake Epp, announced recently.

In 1906, the first Atlas of Canada was completed, no small feat given the size of the task and the tools at hand. Then, in the 1920's, aviators and photographers got together to begin perfecting the art of aerial photography. This development led to eventual completion of a set of 1:250,000 scale maps.

The advent of the computer age gave cartographers the opportunity to take a quantum leap forward, into digitized maps. With new computer technology, the Topographical Mapping Division of the Canada Centre for Mapping embarked on a five-year project aimed at digitally recording the entire by Bill Scott, M.P.

1:250,000 reconnaissance scale maps of Canada. This involved electronicscanning and interactive editing from 917 individual charts.

Canada Centre for Mapping staff designed and developed much of the software used by the computer system for the project. This software proved essential. For example, maps of northern Canada, which contained up to 8,000 lakes each, took only minutes to scan, interpret and store; without specialized software, each could have taken days to complete.

The complete digitized map of Canada is now available and may be purchased in a variety of formats from the Cartographic Information and Distribution Centre.

Work is now underway, in co-operation with industry, on the digitization of 1:50,000 scale maps, which will provide far greater detail about the more developed regions of Canada.

In making his announcement, Mr. MacDougall added: "Canadians are recognized as world leaders in digital mapping techniques. This accomplishment sets the stage for many new commercial opportunities and it has the ability to streamline planning by urban and environmental resource managers."

Bus fund donation is appreciated

Hi Folks. This week we are beginning the last month of the year, 1989.

Thursday as usual we had a tea party which was the birthday tea for those who had birthdays in November. The Legion ladies provided a delicious lunch and lovely birthday cake. Those who had birthdays were Gladys Whyte, Mary Burgess, Margaret Sisson, Mable Buttery and Mary McKelvey. We were pleased to have Rheta Jones - Administrator of Hyland Crest with us. Thank you Legion ladies of Minden for the delicious lunch and birthday cake.

Thursday evening we had bingo in the auditorium and wish to thank Nick Fomenko and his daughter for coming and calling for us. We appreciate having a caller who we can depend on. This is the fourth consecutive night he has been here.

Hyland Crest wishes to express our thanks for your generous gift of $1,000.00 to our bus fund. We appreciate it greatly.

Friday afternoon was Happy Hour. The music was supplied by Freddie Cooper on the accordion, and Sinclair Russel on the violin accompanied by Doris on the piano. Rheta Jones came in and visited with us and to meet more of the Residents. On behalf of the Residents I wish to thank those who entertained us and thanks to Don and Ellen for their help.

Thursday night Alice and Leon Jones visited Leon's mother Annie Jones. They also came on Sunday night. Alice played the organ for Rev. John Burgess who had service in the Chapel. The organ music sure improves our singing. It is appreciated very much.

Monday we had fun and fitness. At 10 o'clock Evelyn Coleman came for a hour's Bible Study and visited several Residents, following that we had a meeting of the Residents Council. Several problems were discussed to make our home better.

In the evening Allan and Ruth Rice came to show us films. One was "Goliath No. 2" the other "Life in a Fugi Village." They were short but we enjoyed them. Thank you Allan and Ruth.

Tuesday morning Rev. B. Parker held the Chapel service also communion.

The sympathy of all at Hyland Crest goes out to the family and friends of Caroline Jones who passed away December 4, 1989.

Ada Turrall is a patient in the hospital at the present. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Tuesday we had a gentleman who has lived in New Zealand come and show us slides on what New Zealand is like. We enjoyed them and thank you for showing them to us.

Everett Fearrey and his daughter came Tuesday night and entertained us with their music and songs. Thank you.

Tuesday night I went to Terry's with Isabel Keefer. I had dinner with them, then Norma and I went to our Secret Prayer Sisters Christmas Party. There was a service in the church then we went downstairs for a few games, a lovely lunch and gift exchange. I saw many friends. Norma and I went back to her place and Terry brought me home.

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of November 27 to December 2.

November 27 - 25 mm mixed snow and rain, 4.4 pH, from Pennsylvania, New York and southern Ontario.

November 28 - 2 cm snow, 4.3 pH, from northeast Ontario and northwest Quebec.

November 29 - 4 cm snow, 4.6 pH, from Lake Superior, Michigan and southern Ontario.

December 2 - 7 cm snow, 4.2 pH, from New York and southern Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

For Your Service

by Shirley Howe

Kinettes started November off with a fun time shopping in arts and crafts stores in the Wyebridge (Midland) area. Then we were back to the Legion for our general meeting and dinner where we welcomed the Peterborough club, including our Zone Co-ordinator Sandy Stibbling. Showing off our gifts we bought and visiting with the Peterborough girls proved an enjoyable evening.

Sounds like the girls had a lot of fun in the Curling Bonspiel in Lindsay.

Repairs were made to our Chuckwagon, saving us a lot of money for a new one.

I hear the Hunter's Ball was fun and we now look forward to hosting our husbands and guests to our Christmas dinner.

If you would like to be part of our club we would be more than glad to have you.

Merry Christmas.

Library provides Christmas-time fun

by Joel Levis

Christmas comes but once a year and with it the celebrations that we have all come to love and enjoy. And this is a special year at a number of the branches of the Haliburton County Public Library because this year we have three special Christmas shows in three branches that are sure to please.

This year we are presenting Doug Barr--singer, story-teller extraordinaire--for three shows only, all on December 16.

The first is at the Snowdon Branch in Lochlin beginning at 10 a.m.. Following that, there is a show at the Cardiff Branch in Highland Grove which begins at 1 p.m. and finally, Doug Barr, appears at the new Dorset Community Centre on behalf of the Sherborne Branch. This show begins at 4:15 p.m., just right for the sleepy heads amongst us.

But the children should keep awake because Doug's close personal friend Santa Claus will also be appearing after each show. What better way to spend Saturday, December 16. So here's your chance to enjoy a top-rate show and meet Santa Claus in person.

Library receives grant

The Haliburton County Public Library has been awarded a grant of $3,600 from the Ministry of Culture and Communications to offset the cost of new equipment purchases for use in the county library system. The grant is available only every two years and this has been the second time since 1987 that money has been received.

In making the announcement today, Joel Levis, County Librarian said the money would go a long way in improving basic library services, especially since it is being matched on the local level by individual townships councils.

Included in the grant were a microfiche cabinet and overhead projector for the Minden Branch, shelving improvements to the Stanhope Branch, new steel shelving for the Sherborne (Dorset) Branch, 16mm film projector for the Bicroft Branch, film screen for the Glamorgan Branch and a combination display/storage unit for magazines to be located in the Cardiff Branch (Highland Grove).

"The Ministry has always been very supportive of our grant applications and this time has hardly been an exception" said Levis. He concluded by noting that "each and every item to be acquired under this grant will contribute greatly to the general improvement of public services and potential".

While some materials have already been acquired and are in place, the remainder should be received before the end of January, 1990.

Tip For The Week

The ideal environment for your Poinsettias is a cool 60 - 65° F (15.5 - 18.5° C) in a bright, well lit area, but never in direct sunlight. Avoid any drafts of warm or cool air.

A good rule of thumb for watering is to water only when the soil is dry to the touch, allow water to drain out through the drain holes and never let your plant sit in water.
